[Act approved June 4, 1897 (Stat. L., v. 21, p. 245), was directed by law to codify the land laws and submit a plan for the classification of the public lands, the work to be finished by Jan. 1, 1881. The commissioners were James A. Williamson, Commissioner of the General Land Office, Clarence King, geologist, Alexander T. Britton, John W. Powell, and Thomas Donaldson. Their publications are said to exhibit the entire legislation of Congress, up to and through the 2d session of the 46th Congress, upon which public land titles in the States and Territories have depended, with a digest of all Indian treaties affecting titles, and tables of judicial and executive decisions. After the commission ceased to exist, later editions were issued which embraced the laws passed up to the end of the 47th Congress, 1st session, but as the later editions are only continuations of the publications of the commission, brought down to date by the original compiler where possible, in other cases the work being done by the General Land Office, they are classed here with the publications of the commission.]

——— Revision of Statutes Commission. Appointed under act approved June 4, 1897.

[1] [As early as 1848 the bulk of the Statutes at-large, then filling 9 volumes, led to a desire for a revision, excluding private and obsolete enactments and including the whole body of permanent general laws of the United States in one volume. In 1848 there was a strong report from the House Judiciary Committee in favor of such a revision, and other similar reports followed, with the result that an act approved June 27, 1866 (Stat. L., v. 14, p. 74), was passed by Congress. The commissioners appointed under this act were Caleb Cushing, Charles P. James, and William Johnson. The first appropriation to carry out this law was in an act approved Mar. 2, 1867 (Stat. L., v. 14, pp. 455, 456), and it is not probable that the commissioners began work before the appropriation became available. Cushing was sent to Bogota in 1868 to adjust a diplomatic dispute, and it does not appear that he acted further with the commission. The official register of 1869 contains only the names of James and Johnson as commissioners. By act approved May 4, 1870 (Stat. L., v 16, p. 96), the law of June , 1866, was extended three years longer, and the names of the commissioners, as given in the official register were Charles P. James, Benj Vaughan Abbott, and Victor C. Barringer. Several reports were made by the commissioners in which it appeared that they had made many minor changes in the wording of the statutes, though such changes were noted in the margins. Their work was not acceptable for the reason that it was regarded as impossible to enact a revision of the statutes proposing so many changes. An act approved Mar. 3, 1873 (Stat. L., v. 17, p. 579), was passed putting the work under the control of a joint committee of the House and Senate, composed of Members and Senators appointed from the Committees on the Revision of the Laws of the Senate and House, respectively, which was authorized to receive from the commissioners whatever reports they should make, and discharge them when their term of service expired, which was May 4, 1873. The joint committee was also authorized to contract with some person or persons, learned in the law, to complete the work of revising the statutes of the United States, and Thomas Jefferson Durant was selected to continue and finish the work. Durant revised the commissioners' work, and his revision was introduced in the House as a bill of the 43d Congress, 1st session, Dec. 10, 1873, by Benjamin F. Butler, being given the number H. 1215. The copy of this bill in the Public Documents Library is without title-page, bill number, or heading, the lines being numbered by sections as bills usually are, bound in leather, with back title: Proposed revision of laws, 1873. This bill was referred to the Committee on Revision of the Laws, and copies sent to many distinguished lawyers throughout the United States, that it might be examined and made as perfect as possible when reported to the House. The title given to the bill on its second reading in the House was "Bill to revise and consolidate statutes of United States in force on 1st day of December, 1873." It passed the House, was engrossed, and sent to the Senate, where it also passed. The copy of the act in the Public Documents Library bears the autograph signatures of James G. Blaine, Speaker of the House Matthew H. Carpenter, President of the Senate, and the approval of the act signed by U. S. Grant, President of the United States. This copy was presented by Luke P. Poland to Dr. Wm. K. Mehaffey, at that time a reading clerk of the House. The act was approved June 22, 1874, and published in 1875, the volume containing also, as an appendix, an act to correct errors and supply omissions, approved Feb. 18, 1875.

A report by Durant, made to the joint committee and embodying a statement of the changes he had made in the work of the commissioners, is referred to by Mr. Poland in the debates on the bill before the House of Representatives, for which see Congressional Record, Jan. 21, 1874. This report is supposed to have been published, though diligent inquiry has failed to locate a copy.

Durant also revised the laws relating to the District of Columbia, and compiled the Indian treaties, the post-road bill, and the bill regulating the punishment for military offenses.

In 1877, George S. Boutwell was appointed a commissioner for the purpose of preparing and publishing a new edition of the 1st volume of the Revised statutes. This edition was published in 1878, and is the legal standard.]

This act provided that the commission should consist of 5 members to be appointed by the President, and that their power and jurisdiction should end 2 years from date of act The President was given power to grant 6 months extensions from time to time. The commission finally became extinct May 2, 1910. By the Treaty of Paris, December, 1898, the United States and Spain mutually agreed to relinquish all claims for indemnity against each other, individual as well as national, the United States at the same time agreeing to adjudicate and settle the claims of its citizens against Spain. It was for the examination of these claims that the Spanish Treaty Claims Commission was created. During the 9 years of its existence it examined 542 claims, involving $84,931,694. It awarded altogether only $1,387,845.

——— correspondence of the American Revolution. By Jared Sparks. Bost., N. Hale, Gray & Bowen, 1829. 12 vols. 8° 3 copies. E. (38)

"Mar. 27, 1818, Congress ordered the publication, under direction of the President, of sundry historical documents, among them 'the foreign correspondence of the Congress of the United States, from the first meeting thereof down to the date of the ratification of the definitive treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States in the year 1783,' except such parts as the President might choose to withhold. The work of editing was intrusted to Jared Sparks, and he brought out, from the press of N. Hale, Boston, 1829-30, 'The diplomatic correspondence of the American Revolution,' in 12 volumes."

——— [Same.] By State Department. (Also entitled Diplomatic correspondence of the United States of America.) Wash., F. P. Blair, 1834. 7 vols. 8° 2 copies. E. (38)

"May 5, 1832, Congress appropriated $12,000 'to enable the Secretary of State to cause to be printed, under his direction, a selection from the diplomatic correspondence of the United States between the peace of 1783 and the 4th of March, 1789, remaining unpublished in the Department of State.' Under this authority appeared, Washington, printed by Francis Preston Blair, 1833-34, in 7 volumes, 'The diplomatic correspondence of the United States, from the signing of the definitive treaty of peace, Sept. 10, 1783, to the adoption of the Constitution, Mar. 4, 1789.' This title can not be accepted as accurate, for though the Government created under the Constitution went into operation Mar. 4, 1789 (or would have done so if a Congressional quorum had assembled promptly), that is not the date of the adoption of the Constitution. A 2d edition of the diplomatic correspondence, 1783-89, was published in Washington, 1837, by Blair and Rives, and this was reprinted, 1855, in 3 volumes, by John C. Rives."

Diplomatic correspondence of the United States, the Revolutionary. By Francis Wharton. 1889. 6 vols. 8° 50—1; H. mis. doc. 603, pts. 1–5. E. 3 copies. (38)

"A new collection, edited by Francis Wharton, covering approximately the same period as Sparks and entitled 'The Revolutionary diplomatic correspondence of the United States,' was issued by the Government Printing Office, 1889, in 6 volumes. Wharton restores the integrity of the text, with which Sparks had taken undue liberties, and adds much new matter. Of this collection 7,000 sets were printed in addition to the Congressional edition."

——— Report of special joint committee. S. rept. 10; 60—1. (19)

[Act approved June 4, 1897 (Stat. L. v. 30, p. 58), provided "that the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint three commissioners, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of the Attorney General, to revise and codify the criminal and penal laws of the United States." The duties of this commission were extended, by act approved Mar. 3, 1899 (Stat. L. v. 30, p. 1116), to include the revision of laws concerning the jurisdiction and practice of the United States courts. By act approved Mar. 3, 1901 (Stat. L. v. 31, p. 1181), Congress further extended the duties of the commission to include the revision of all laws of a permanent and general nature. Congress, by act approved June 30, 1906 (Stat. L. v. 34, pt. 1, p. 754), directed that the commission should complete its work and make a final report to Congress on or before Dec. 16, 1906.

The commission was at first known as Commission to Revise and Codify Criminal and Penal Laws, later, when its duties were enlarged, as Commission to Revise Laws of United States. Although by law the commission made annual reports to the Attorney General, its final report was to be made directly to Congress.

DOCUMENT LISTS.

NOTE.—The congressional documents, it should be remembered, comprise the messages communicated to Congress by the President of the United States, the legislative journals of both Houses of the Congress, the secret proceedings or executive journals of the Senate, the reports of congressional committees on bills, resolutions, and public affairs, communications made to Congress by the executive or judicial officers of the Government, and many miscellaneous publications, such as United States laws, the Congressional Record, the Congressional Directory, Rebellion Records, etc., as Congress may order to be printed for its information and distribution. * * *

It was not until the commencement of the Thirteenth Congress, in December, 1813, that the House of Representatives, which legislative branch publishes by far the larger number of documents and reports, realized sufficiently the growing importance and permanent value of its own transactions to impel it to introduce systematic methods of publication. The House then adopted a consecutive series of numbers, which was applied to its public documents, beginning anew at the commencement of each Congress and running uninterruptedly to the end of the last session of such Congress.

The Senate long sat in secret session, and apart from its meager executive and legislative journals had the policy of placing as little as possible of its proceedings in printed and accessible form. Later, when public opinion constrained a change of policy, it was years before it showed a marked inclination to print freely its reports or documents. It naturally pursued a more conservative or dilatory course, and did not apply the serial numbering to its documents until two years after the action of the House, in December, 1815, at the beginning of the first session of the Fourteenth Congress.—[Gen. A. W. Greely, U. S. A., in American Historical Association Report for 1896, 54th Congress, 2d session, House Doc. No. 353, part 1, pp. 1109–1114. [1] The annual report on agriculture began in 1837 with a two-page statement in the report of Henry L. Ellsworth, Commissioner of Patents. From that date to 1861 it formed a part of the report of the Commissioner of Patents, making a separate volume after 1849.

In 1862 the Department of Agriculture was established, and its annual report was uniformly issued up to 1893. Beginning with the report for 1894, in accordance with paragraph 2, sec. 73, of the printing act of Jan 12, 1895, two separate publications have been issued, one, the report proper, containing the Secretary's report and the purely executive reports of the several chiefs of bureaus, divisions, and offices; the other, known as the Yearbook, embracing the Secretary's report and a collection of special articles on agricultural science.

The title of the head of the department was Commissioner of Agriculture until 1889, when he became Secretary of Agriculture and a member of the Cabinet.

NOTE.—"The original plan of this work, undertaken by the late Peter Force, of Washington, in 1830, and discontinued in 1853, was projected on the most ample scale. It was designed to cover nothing less than all the public state papers and documents, with extensive publications from private papers, narratives, and journals, as well as from newspapers, bearing upon the discovery, settlement, and history of the United States from 1492 to the final ratification of the Constitution in 1790.

Mr. Force and his associate, Matthew St. Clair Clarke, were authorized by act of March 2, 1833, under contract with the Secretary of State, to prepare and publish a work entitled "The Documentary History of the American Revolution." The whole history of the American Colonies was divided in the arrangement of this work into six periods, embracing—

1. The origin of the several colonies; their charters, bills of rights, etc., and the public papers previous to and their condition in 1763.
2. From 1763 to the Congress of 1765 at New York.
3. From 1765 to the Congress of 1774 at Philadelphia.
4. From 1774 to the Declaration of Independence.
5. From 1776 to the peace of 1783.
6. From the peace to 1789, the organization of our present Federal Government.

The publication authorized by Congress began with the fourth period, closing with the Declaration of Independence. Six folio volumes known as the Fourth Series, and three folio volumes of the Fifth Series, extending only to December, 1776, were published during the years 1837 to 1853, when the work was stopped by the Secretary of State withholding his approval. * * *

In February, 1867, the Force Library, with all its manuscripts and printed material, was purchased for the Government by the unanimous recommendation of the Joint Committee on the Library for the sum of $100,000, and added to the Library of Congress." * * * [A. [1] In accordance with a resolution passed and signed by the 4th International American Conference held in Buenos Aires, July 12–Aug. 30, 1910, the name of the American Republics Bureau was changed to Pan American Union. In accordance with the resolution above referred to, the title of the director was changed to "director general" and the title of the secretary to "assistant director."

[2] The International Bureau of American Republics was created by the 1st International American Conference held in Washington, D. C., Oct. 2, 1889–Apr. 19, 1890, and was confirmed and reorganized by the 2d and 3d International American Conferences held, respectively, in Mexico City, Oct. 22, 1901–Jan. 31, 1902, and in Rio de Janeiro, July 21–Aug. 26, 1906. This bureau is an international organization supported by contributions of the 21 Republics in this hemisphere, who have an equal interest in the institution.

The bureau was organized in 1890, under the supervision of the Secretary of State of the United States, acting at the request of the 1st conference, and under authority of act of Congress approved July 14, 1890 (Stat. L. v. 26, p. 275). Mar. 18, 1899, at a conference of diplomatic representatives of the countries composing the International Union of American Republics it was unanimously agreed, that "the Bureau of American Republics shall be governed under the supervision of the Secretary of State of the United States with the cooperation and advice of four representatives of the other Republics composing the International Union, the five persons indicated to constitute an executive committee of which the Secretary of State is to be ex officio chairman, or in his absence, the acting Secretary of State." At the 2d International American Conference, held in Mexico, it was resolved as follows: "Article 1. The International Bureau of the American Republics shall be under the control of a Governing Board composed of the diplomatic representatives of all the Governments of said Republics accredited near the Government of the United States of America, and of the Secretary of State of the latter nation, who shall be the chairman of said board." The 3d International American Conference enlarged the scope of the bureau without materially altering its status or organization.

Notwithstanding the fact of its close connection with the Secretary of State, it has never been, strictly speaking, a division of the State Department of the United States.

[1] "The 'American State Papers' are of the highest historical value to students of American affairs. * * The necessity of reprinting the early Congressional documents and reports was, from time to time, urged upon Congress, but for years without avail. Meanwhile time and circumstances had scattered or destroyed the greater part of the early documents, which were originally printed for the convenience and use of a few score men. (At first there were 26 Senators and 61 Representatives.) As the number of Senators and Representatives steadily increased and Congressional committees were multiplied, the demand for reports and documents of former Congresses exceeded the supply, and, to crown all, the burning of the Capitol, in 1814, practically destroyed the entire reserve.

"The question of reprinting the early documents was fruitlessly agitated until the act of Congress, approved March 2, 1831, which was followed later by the acts of 1833 and 1858. The act of 1831 provided that documents selected from the archives of Congress should be collated and printed under the supervision of the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives. The results of these acts of Congress are comprised in the publications known as the 'American State Papers,' 38 folio volumes. * * * Congress had acted none too soon, for the compilers say: 'The great mass of these documents were to be found only in the archives of the two Houses. No complete set of them existed in any other place. * * * In addition to this, many exist only in the manuscript records of the two Houses.'" [Gen. A. W. Greely, U. S. A., in Am. Hist. Asso. Report for 1896.]

[1][Though only one document, and that unimportant, relating to Wait's collection of state papers and public documents has been found in the Congressional series, it is well known that Congress bought numerous copies of the several editions of which there were three, the first in 8 v., the second in 10 v., and the third in 12 v. The first issue, in 1814, began with Jefferson's administration. After 5 v. had been issued, bringing the record and date of printing down to 1815, a return was made to the beginning, and 3 v. of the papers of the administrations of Washington and John Adams were issued in 1815. These were made v. 1-3 of the 1st edition, the volumes previously issued becoming v. 4-8, with an index to the series in v. 8. The 2d edition, issued 1817, carried the chronological record one volume farther and added a 10th volume made up of confidential documents, 1790–1813, not previously printed, this volume having its own index. The 3d edition, printed in 1819, brings the record down to 1818. Only v. 11 and 12, with index in v. 12, are new matter. That this series is much less known and less used than Gales & Seaton's later and larger one under the name American state papers is no doubt due to the several facts that Wait covers but one subject, foreign relations, that its arrangement is chronological, with no classification, under countries or otherwise, and that it is insufficiently indexed. None of Wait's 30 volumes is included in the numbered Congressional series].

[1] "[In sec. 35 of 'An act to establish the judicial courts of the United States,' approved Sept. 24, 1789, provision was made for the appointment of an Attorney-General "whose duty it shall be to prosecute and conduct all suits in the Supreme Court in which the United States shall be concerned, and to give his advice and opinion upon questions of law when required by the President of the United States, or when requested by the heads of any of the Departments, touching any matters that may concern their Departments . . ." (Stat. L. v. 1, p. 92).

"But it was not until July 1, 1870, by act approved June 22, 1870 (Stat. L. v. 16, p. 162), that the Department of Justice was organized as an Executive Department, with the Attorney-General at its head. To this Department the legal advisers then attached to other departments were transferred, and the jurisdiction which the Secretary of Interior held over the accounts of the district attorneys, marshals, clerks, and other officers of the courts of the United States, was ordered to be exercised by the Attorney-General.]"

[1] The Coast Survey was established by an act of Congress approved Feb. 10, 1807, and reorganized under the provisions of an act approved July 10, 1832. Reports of progress were made in 1816 and 1818, when the work of the survey was suspended until 1832, since which date an annual report has been issued.

"Provision was made in act of Mar. 3, 1871, for extending the triangulation of the coast survey, so as to form a geodetic connection between the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts of the United States. Beginning with that of 1878, its reports have been entitled 'Report of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.'"

[1] As the commerce of the country has increased, these statistical reports have grown from octavo to bulky quarto volumes. For 1866–76, a brief annual report of the director with usually some condensed statistical matter is found also in annual reports of Treasury Department. Until 1850 there is no edition without congressional document number. See, for papers relating to commerce and navigation, Apr. 13, 1789–Feb. 25, 1823, American State Papers, Commerce and Navigation, serial Nos. 014-015.

[1] Annals of the Congress of the United States, for the First Congress, state briefly the means devised of "forming a union which should possess the requisite authority and become the foundation of certain and durable prosperity." The same volume contains also an outline of the proceedings which resulted in the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, the letter of George Washington, the President of the Constitutional Convention, transmitting to Congress the Constitution, together with the resolutions of the Convention, and the text of the Constitution of the United States, as originally adopted.

"The preparatory measures having been taken for bringing the Constitution into operation and the necessary elections of Representatives, Senators, President, and Vice-President having been held, nothing remained to start it into life but the assembly and organization of the two Houses of Congress."

On the first page of the first volume of Annals is the following statement by the editor:

"[This seems to be a proper place to note a fact which is necessary to account for the meagerness of the report of the Senate proceedings in the earlier days of the Government, viz, that the legislative as well as executive sittings of the Senate were held with closed doors until the second session of the Third Congress, with the single exception of the discussion of the contested election of A. Gallatin as Senator from Pennsylvania, during which discussion the galleries were opened by a special order of the Senate. On the 20th February, 1794, the Senate came to a resolution that, after the end of that session of Congress, the galleries of the Senate should be permitted to be opened whilst the Senate should be engaged in its legislative capacity, unless specially ordered otherwise. This, it will be perceived, was an important change in the constitution of the Senate.]"

[1] "Prior to 1855, all claims of citizens against the Government were laid before Congress and referred to a Committee on Claims in the Senate or House. The inability of these committees to examine fully all the claims submitted, and the difficulty of getting Congress to appropriate money for the payment of such claims as were favorably reported, amounted often to a denial of justice. By an act approved Feb. 25, 1855, a court for the hearing of private claims was established. It was, however, required to submit its findings, with briefs and testimony, to Congress, where they were referred to committees as before, and the resulting delay and injustice were but little mitigated. On Mar. 3, 1863, an amendatory act was passed making the Court of Claims really a court, its findings no longer subject to review by Congress, but providing for an appeal to the Supreme Court."

Foreign Relations, 1816–

This is a collection of documents bearing upon important questions connected with our foreign relations. They are copies of documents which were separately ordered printed by the Senate and House of Representatives at various times during the period between 1816 and 1832. There are messages of the Presidents of the United States, reports of Secretaries of State, embracing voluminous correspondence between the Department of State and our ministers abroad, reports of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and reports of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, upon subjects of leading importance; and there are memorials and other papers touching our foreign relations. These documents, several hundred all told, were collected by Col. William Hickey, formerly chief clerk of the Senate, arranged chronologically, and bound in 11 volumes, aggregating fully 5,000 printed pages, as follows:

[1] For land affairs prior to 1825, see American State Papers, Public Lands, volumes 1, 2, 3, etc.

By act establishing the Department of War, Aug. 7, 1789, the Secretary of War was charged with supervision over "the granting of lands to persons entitled thereto for military services rendered to the United States." The act establishing the Department of the Treasury, Sept. 2, 1789, required the Secretary of the Treasury to execute "services relative to the sale of the lands belonging to the United States." An act of May 18, 1796, provided for surveying these lands, and authorized the President to grant patents for lands, to be countersigned by the Secretary of State and recorded in his office. Land offices were established and proper registry provided for by acts of May 10, 1800, and Mar. 26, 1804.

Act of Apr. 25, 1812, provided "that there shall be established in the Department of the Treasury an office, to be denominated the General Land Office, the chief officer of which shall be called the commissioner of the General Land Office, whose duty it shall be * * * to superintend, execute, and perform all such acts and things touching or respecting the public lands of the United States * * * as have heretofore been directed by law to be done or performed in the office of the Secretary of State, of the Secretary and Register of the Treasury, and of the Secretary of War."

An act of July 4, 1836, "to reorganize the General Land Office" provided that the executive duties concerning public lands and private claims for land prescribed therein "be subject to the supervision and control of the commissioner of the General Land Office, under the direction of the President of the United States." The question immediately arose as to whether the effect of this law was to remove the control of the Land Office from the Treasury Department. The opinion of the Attorney General on the subject, rendered July 4, 1836 (J 1.5:3, p. 137) was to the effect that the supervision remained with the Treasury Department, and in order to remove all doubt, the President, at the suggestion of the Attorney General, directed that the Secretary of the Treasury continue to superintend the business of the Land Office.

In 1849 the act establishing the Department of the Interior transferred the General Land Office from the Treasury Department to the Interior Department.

[1] For Indian affairs prior to 1825, see American State Papers, Indian Affairs, vol. 1. The supervision of Indian affairs was originally committed to the Secretary of War. Under him was appointed first a superintendent of Indian trade, who subsequently became Superintendent of Indian Affairs. By act of Congress approved July 9, 1832, provision was made for the appointment of a Commissioner of Indian Affairs, to be an officer of the War Department. On the organization, however, of the Department of the Interior in 1849, his office was made one of the bureaus of said department, with which it has since been connected.

[1] The Department of the Interior was organized under the provisions of an act of Congress approved Mar. 3, 1849, by which act the Patent Office and the Census Office were transferred from the Department of State, the Land Office from the Treasury Department, the Indian Office from the War Department, the Pension Office from the War and Navy Departments, and placed under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior. Since that date the Bureau of Education, the United States Geological Survey, the Office of the Commissioner of Railroads, and the Bureau of Labor have been established and attached to the Department, and a number of institutions and offices of the Government, not connected with any of the above-named bureaus, have also been put under its supervision, all making their annual reports to the Secretary.

Journals of the Constitutional Convention.

In a special message dated December 16, 1821, President Monroe stated that in pursuance of a resolution of March 27, 1818, "1,000 copies of the journals and acts of the Convention which formed the Constitution have been printed and placed at the disposal of Congress." This publication is not found among the numbered Congressional documents. It was published in Boston, 1819, by T. B. Wait, in one volume, octavo, under this title: "Journal, acts, and proceedings of the Convention assembled at Philadelphia, Monday, May 14, and dissolved Monday, September 17, 1787, which formed the Constitution of the United States." It is supposed to have been edited by John Quincy Adams, then Secretary of State.

[1] Edited from the original records in the Library of Congress.

"The earliest printed volume of the Journal of the Continental Congress was for the session held at Philadelphia, Sept. 5, 1774; it was printed at Philadelphia by William and Thomas Bradford, 1774. An edition for the same session was immediately issued by Hugh Gaine, New York, 1774. Two later Journals were printed in Philadelphia by William and Thomas Bradford in 1775 and 1776, respectively. This ended the publication of the Journals by the Bradfords, and as their work had become unsatisfactory on account of their delay in printing, another printer was employed who could execute the work more expeditiously. Robert Aitken then printed the Journals for a time, beginning where the Bradfords left off. Under the sanction of a committee of Congress, but not by Congress itself, Aitken published the Journal in monthly subdivisions from Jan. to May, 1776. This was completed in Oct., 1776.

"Meantime on Sept. 26, 1776, the Continental Congress ordered that Aitken be employed to reprint the Journals from the beginning, with all possible expedition, and to continue to print the same. Aitken was further directed to purchase from the Bradfords such parts of the Journals as they had printed, but not yet published, to be paid for by the Congress. Under this order and by direction of the printing committee, Aitken issued in 2 v. his new edition of the Journals. With these volumes began the authorized edition."

[1] On May 18, 1826, the House of Representatives ordered that 400 copies of the Journals of the House for each of the sessions of the First to Thirteenth Congresses be printed under direction of the Clerk of the House. Under this order, Gales & Seaton reprinted the Journals of the House for the first 13 Congresses in 9 volumes, each bearing the imprint date 1826. There is a title-page for each session, as in the original prints, but they are uniform in style, not following the variations of the originals, while Gales & Seaton's Washington imprint, with the date of reprinting, is substituted in each case for the original imprint, and the volume number is inserted in the first title of each volume. There are no volume or series title-pages. There is a general index for each volume.

[1] On May 1, 1820, the Senate passed the following order: "Resolved, That there be printed * * * that part of the journal thereof of which the Senate are not in possession of any printed copy; and there be printed 300 copies thereof." Under this order the public journals of the Senate for all the sessions of the first 13 Congresses were reprinted in 5 volumes, 1820–21, at Washington, by Gales & Seaton. The title-pages, one for each session, resemble the original prints, but do not reproduce all their variations, and Gales & Seaton's Washington imprint, with the date of reprinting, is in each case substituted for the original imprint, while the volume number is inserted in the first title-page of each volume except volume 1. There are no volume or series title-pages. There is an index for each session, but all those belonging to one volume are bound together at the end of that volume.

[1] The Executive Journals are, of course, the journals of the executive sessions of the Senate, which are held in secret. These journals are not printed in ordinary course, but only by special order of the Senate. The first order for this purpose was made Apr. 4, 1828, and provided for the publication of the secret journal, of the first 19 Congresses. As a matter of fact the journals of the Twentieth Congress were also included, and the period of time covered was from May 25, 1789, when the first executive session was held, to Feb. 23, 1829. This issue was in 3 volumes, printed in Washington by Duff Green, the imprint date in each volume being 1828. The edition was 700 copies. Fifty-eight years elapsed before another order for printing the Executive Journals was passed. Its date was June 28, 1886, and it provided for publishing the journals from the close of the Twentieth Congress to the close of the Fortieth Congress, a period of 40 years, ending Mar. 3, 1869. One hundred copies only were ordered printed, but later the Secretary of the Senate reported that he had taken the liberty of printing 125 copies. The injunction of secrecy was not removed from this print until June 14, 1888, and at the same time a distribution was ordered which took up 107 sets, each of the then 76 Senators getting 1, the Senate library 5, the House library 2, the Library of Congress 2, and sundry officials the others, 18 sets only remaining to be held in reserve by the Senate. These facts account for the great difficulties which the representative libraries of the country have found in completing their sets of the Executive Journals, especially for the 40 years from 1829 to 1869. The issue for this period Twentieth to Fortieth Congresses, was from the Government Printing Office, imprinted 1887, and in 13 volumes, numbered 4–16, but in 15 books, volumes 14 and 15 being each in 2 parts. The Senate next took up the matter of publishing the Executive Journals, Jan. 21, 1901, and then provided that the journals from Mar. 3, 1869, to the end of the Fifty-first Congress, March, 1891, should be printed in an edition of 250 copies. They were so printed at the Government Printing Office, imprinted 1901, filling 11 volumes numbered 17–27. The fourth issue, covering the Fifty-second to Fifty-eighth Congresses, 1891–1905, is also of 250 copies, and will fill at least 7 volumes, numbered 28–34, and perhaps one or two more. None of the volumes of the Executive Journals or of the reprints of the public journals is found in the series of numbered congressional documents.

[1] The Library of Congress, first established by the act of Apr. 24, 1800, was partially destroyed in 1814 when the British fired the Capitol. By the act of Jan. 30, 1815, the library of Thomas Jefferson was purchased by the Government, and this collection formed the basis of the present national library.

[1] The Patent Office was originally connected with the Department of State, but was transferred to the Department of the Interior upon its organization in 1849. From 1837 to 1842 it issued brief reports in pamphlet form, but subsequently in volumes, as above enumerated. Prior to 1862, when the Department of Agriculture was established, the report on agriculture was prepared and published by the Commissioner of Patents, and forms a volume, or part of a volume, of his annual reports, the first being that of 1840. These reports, except vol. 4, 1869, vols. 2 and 3, 1870, and vols. 1, 2, 3, 1871, are included in the set of Congressional documents bound in leather, forming a part of the executive documents of the House of Representatives. Those of 1849 to 1858, inclusive, are included also in the executive documents of the Senate. A separate edition bound in cloth was also published. In 1872 the Official Gazette, a weekly publication, was substituted in the place of the annual reports, when the publication and distribution of the latter ceased. An index to the Gazette is issued annually.

[1] The Taft Philippine Commission was appointed by the President in March, 1900. The commission was directed by the President to report to the Secretary of War, and all its actions to be subject to his approval and control. The commission arrived in Manila June 3, 1900, but did not perform any functions in the military government until Sept. 1, 1900. In September, 1900, the central government of the islands was established under instructions of the President, with a military governor as chief executive and the commission as the legislative body with certain executive functions in addition. This continued until July 4, 1901, when the civil executive authority theretofore reposed in the military governor and in the commission was transferred to a civil governor. Congress approved and ratified the President's action by passing on July 1, 1902, an act temporarily to provide for administration of affairs of civil government in Philippine Islands, etc. (Stat. L., v. 32, pt. 1, p. 691). The Philippine Commission passed a general election law Jan. 9, 1907, in conformity with the organic act of Congress of July 1, 1902, for members of the Philippine Assembly and for officers for the different provinces and municipalities. The election for members of the Philippine Assembly was held July 30, 1907, and the assembly was opened by the Secretary of War Oct. 16, 1907. The election for the municipal and provincial officers was held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November, 1907. The Philippine Legislature which has since Oct. 16, 1907, exercised the legislative function for the islands, is composed of 2 bodies, the Philippine Commission forming the upper house, and the Philippine Assembly the lower house.

[2] Beginning with 61st Cong., 3d sess., acts of the legislature will be found with commission reports.

[1] For postal affairs prior to 1825 see American State Papers, Post Office, vol. 1. The Post Office was temporarily established by law, under the Constitution, Sept. 22, 1789, and a Postmaster General was authorized to be appointed, to be subject to the direction of the President of the United States in performing the duties of his office and in forming contracts for the transportation of the mail. His powers and salary and the compensation to the assistant or clerks and deputies which he should appoint, and the regulations of the Post Office were to continue as they last were under the resolutions of the late Congress. This act was to continue in force until the end of the second session of the First Congress, and was further continued by the acts of Aug. 4, 1790, and Mar. 3, 1791, to the end of the first session of the Second Congress. The acts of Feb. 20, 1792; May 8, 1794; Mar. 2, 1799; Apr. 30, 1810; and Mar. 3, 1825, established at the seat of government of the United States a General Post Office, established post roads, within the United States, and provided for the appointment of a Postmaster General and assistants and deputy postmasters at all places where they should be found necessary, and prescribed in detail the duties of all such officers. By act of June 8, 1872, the Post Office Department was established and made one of the executive departments.

[1] The office of Superintendent of Public Printing was established by an act of Aug. 26, 1852. The duties of the superintendent were those of an auditor. Under act of June 23, 1860, the Government Printing Office was established, and on Mar. 23, 1861, John D. Defrees, the first Superintendent of Public Printing under the new law, assumed charge of the establishment. The title of the chief, by act of Feb. 22, 1867, was changed to Congressional Printer, and again, by act of June 20, 1874, to Public Printer.

[1] Prior to 1823 there are no separate reports of the receipts and disbursements of the Secretaries of the Senate. The custom had been to appropriate annually a sum in gross for the maintenance of the two Houses of Congress and the conduct of their business. Until June 30, 1872, the reports of the Secretaries covered the congressional year, but in pursuance of section 1 of the act approved May 8, 1872, they were changed to conclude with the fiscal year, and so remain.

[1] The Smithsonian Institution was founded upon the bequest of James Smithson, of London, England, who gave his entire property to the United States to establish an institution for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men. It was incorporated by act of Congress approved Aug. 10, 1846. The first report was issued in 1847, and an annual report thereafter. The volume, however, containing the report for 1853 embraces the essential portions of preceding reports and is now considered the first of the set.

[1] This is the oldest of the executive departments. The act of Congress approved July 27, 1789, established a Department of Foreign Affairs, and this act was followed by another, approved Sept. 15, 1789, which enlarged the duties of the department and directed that it be called the Department of State. This law required the Secretary to receive and publish the laws of the United States; to be custodian of the seal of the United States; to authenticate copies of records and papers properly coming before him, and to receive all records and papers in the office of the late Secretary of Congress, except such as related to the Treasury and War Departments.

United States.

Statutes at Large, Revised Statutes, and Supplement to the Revised Statutes.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

A joint resolution of June 14, 1790, declared "that all treaties made, or which shall be made and promulgated under the authority of the United States, shall, from time to time, be published and annexed to their code of laws by the Secretary of State." This order has been observed in the current series of Statutes at Large.

An edition of the Statutes at Large was edited by Richard Peters, and published by Little & Brown in 1845. This edition of the Statutes has been continued in regular order for each subsequent Congress.

Volume 8 (in addition to the treaties between the United States and foreign nations rom February 6, 1778, to February 24, 1845) contains: 1. Tables of acts of Congress, from 1789 to 1845 relating to the judiciary, to imports and tonnage, to public lands, and to the post office; 2. An index to the five volumes of public statutes; and 3. General index to the matter embraced in the eight volumes (1789 to 1845), inclusive of this volume 8.

An edition of the laws published in 1815 by Bioren & Duane and R. C. Weightman. This edition was compiled by J. B. Colvin upon the basis of a plan prepared by Richard Rush, then Attorney General of the United States, and adopted by James Monroe, Secretary of State, in conformity with the act of Congress of the 18th of April, 1814. (For the correspondence of and the plan adopted by Attorney General Rush and Secretary of State Monroe, and for explanatory observations by the compiler, see volume 1, pages iii–vii, viii–xi, of this edition.) The edition consisted originally of five volumes, and embraced the laws of the United States from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1815, with the exception of "the local judiciary acts, and all acts confiding power to corporate bodies in the District of Columbia, or which have been otherwise passed by Congress in their character of legislature for the District," which were excluded. The series of laws contained in the preceding volumes of the edition of Bioren & Duane were continued to March 3, 1845, by the sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth volumes. Volume 1 contains the Declaration of Independence, the Articles of Confederation, the Constitution, and the proceedings which led to its adoption; treaties with foreign nations and Indian tribes, from 1778 to 1814; grants, treaties, and cessions by which lands have been acquired by the United States, from 1783 to 1814; old proclamations and grants of lands, and treaties between foreign governments relating to titles to lands, and boundaries of territories now included within the United States; grant to the Hudson's Bay Company; cessions of land by several States to the United States; title of the United States to Louisiana (grant to Crozat); Treaty of Paris of February 10, 1783, between Great Britain, France, and Spain; explanatory notes of the acquisition, surveys, sales, donations, and other disposition of and regulations concerning the public lands in the early periods of the Government; extracts from early English charters conveying territory; ordinance for the government of the territory northwest of the River Ohio; resolutions of the old Congress relative to military-bounty land; evidence respecting land claims of Ohio, Illinois, Wabash, Yazoo, Houma, Renaut, Dubuque, Chouteau, Bastrop, St. Vrain, etc.; origin of the Departments of State, War, Navy, Treasury, Post Office, Indian Affairs, and the Mint; an ordinance for settling the accounts between the United States and the individual States; lighthouses, beacons, buoys, and public piers, and cessions of land for same from the States to the United States; the military establishment of the United States in 1787, and lands held for military purposes; acts and resolutions of the old Congress concerning the seat of the General Government, the flag of the United States, device for a great seal, device for copper coinage, half pay, commutation, invalids, pensions, acts of limitation, etc.

United States—Continued.

The act of January 12, 1895 (28 Stats., 615), requires that "the Statutes at Large shall contain all laws, joint and concurrent resolutions passed by Congress, and also all conventions, treaties, proclamations, and agreements."

Each volume of Statutes at Large contains an index.

A commission to revise and codify the criminal and penal laws of the United States was authorized by an act of Congress dated June 4, 1897. By an act of March 3, 1901, the duties of said commission were extended so as to include a report of all laws of the United States of a permanent nature. This commission made its final report to Congress December 15, 1906.

Consolidated Index to the United States Statutes at Large, 1789–1903. G. P. O., 1905. 4 vols. 4°.

Revised Statutes.

Two editions of the Revised Statutes of the United States have been published, the first edition in 1873 and the second edition in 1878. Since the latter year Supplements to the Revised Statutes have been published as follows: Volume 1 (first and second editions), embracing the legislation by Congress from 1874 to 1891, inclusive. Volume 2 (in eight parts, published from time to time) embraces the legislation from 1891 to 1897, inclusive. Part 8 of Supplement, vol. 2, contains a consolidated index relating to the matter in all of the eight parts.

The Revised Statutes of 1873 were published as part 1 of volume 18 of the Statutes at Large. Part 2 of volume 18 contained the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the District of Columbia and post roads, together with a compilation of all the treaties in force December 1, 1873. Part 3 of volume 18 contained, as usual, the statutes enacted during the period of the Forty-third Congress, March 4, 1873, to March 3, 1875, inclusive.

In 1878 the Revised Statutes were "reprinted, with amendments, under authority of an act of Congress approved the 2d day of March, in the year 1877, with an appendix," [1] Hon. George S. Boutwell having been the commissioner charged with the execution of the work.

Supplement to the Revised Statutes.

Volume 1, second edition, 1874–1891 (Forty-third to Fifty-first Congress, inclusive). This volume embraces the statutes, general and permanent in their nature, passed after the Revised Statutes and in force at the end of the Fifty-first Congress (1874–1891), with references connecting provisions on the same subject, explanatory notes, citations of judicial decisions, and a general index.

Volume 2, numbers 1 to 9, inclusive, 1891–1901 (Fifty-second to Fifty-sixth Congress, inclusive). This volume contains the general and permanent laws of the Fifty-second, Fifty-third, Fifty-fourth, Fifty-fifth, and Fifty-sixth Congresses (1891–1901), inclusive, with a consolidated index to the entire volume, numbers 1 to 9.

District of Columbia Statutes.

"Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the District of Columbia, passed at the first session of the Forty-third Congress, 1873–74," are contained in part 2 of volume 18 of the United States Statutes at Large. In addition to the "Revised and Consolidated Statutes of the United States, general and permanent in their nature, relating to the District of Columbia, in force on the 1st day of December, in the year of our Lord 1873," this volume contains "Revised Statutes of the United States relating to Post-Roads, passed at the first session of the Forty-third Congress, 1873–74," and "public treaties of the United States, in force on the 1st day of December, 1873." A complete index accompanies each of these divisions in the volume.

"The Compiled Statutes in force in the District of Columbia, including the acts of the second session of the Fiftieth Congress, 1887–1889," in one volume, were compiled by William Stone Abert and Benjamin G. Lovejoy, and were printed and published under the authority of an act of Congress approved March 2, 1899, and the direction of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The law required that "all statutes and parts of statutes in force in said District, including the acts of the second sessions of the Fiftieth Congress, and relating to all such matters as would properly come within the scope of a civil and criminal code," should be compiled, arranged, and classified, with a proper index. The statutes included in the compilation have been selected from: (1) The British statutes in force in Maryland at the time of the cession of the territory to the United States for the seat of government and now in force in the District. (2) The statutes of Maryland, beginning with the session of the Maryland assembly held the 26th day of April, 1704, and ending with the acts passed prior to February 27, 1801. (3) The Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the District of Columbia, published in 1875. (4) The Revised Statutes of the United States and the Statutes at Large in which the District of Columbia is specifically named or which refer to "courts of the United States," and also such statutes, civil and criminal, referring to certain territory of the United States and all places or districts of country under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, and which are not locally inapplicable. (5) The acts of the legislative assembly of the District from June 2, 1871, through June 26, 1873. In addition there has been published with the compilation an appendix containing certain historical chapters which deserve preservation and a place in the same volume with the statutes in force; also, judicial citations of the Federal courts and of the court of appeals of Maryland, explaining or construing the text, and many valuable footnotes containing useful information.

[1] The appendix contains, among other matters, statutes relating to the "revision and consolidation of the statutelaws of the United States" (see p. 1089), and also a reference index by which the various provisions of the Revised Statutes may be traced to the original enactments in the Statutes at Large (see p. 1101).

District of Columbia Code of Law, 1902, 1905, 1911.

"An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia," approved March 3, 1901, went into effect and operation from and after the 1st day of January, in the year of our Lord 1902. It has been amended by acts approved January 31 and June 30, 1902, and March 3, 1905. U. S. Statutes at Large, vol. 31, p. 1189, vol. 32, pp. 2, 520, and vol. 33, p. 689.

[1] For reports prior to 1825 see American State Papers, Military Affairs, vols. 1, 2, 3, etc. The War Department was organized under the provisions of an act of Congress approved August 7, 1789. Reports were from that date made by the Secretary, which are found among the documents of the Senate or House. The annual report, however, does not form a separate volume until 1849.

For many years prior to the 60th Congress, Senate and House reports were each numbered consecutively through the whole Congress, no matter how many sessions were held, but for Senate and House documents a new series of numbers was begun with each session. Under the act of Mar. 1, 1907 (Stat. L. v. 34, pt. 1, p. 1014), the documents, as well as the reports, are numbered throughout the Congress. This act became operative with the 2d session of the 60th Congress. The first Senate document of that session is number 538, in serial nos. 5388 and 5389, and the first House document is number 988, in serial no. 5501.

There will be no congressional print. Therefore, volume 82, with serial number 6026, and number 1457 in the series of House documents will remain blank.
